LETTER WRITER TO TAKE STAND TODAY

MRS. LENA. ENZLER'S CONFESSION POSTPONED UNTIL 2 P. M. TODAY.

JURORS AT HOME SUNDAY

Judge Landis Allowed Them Recess More Surprises Have Been Promised.

Freeport, Oct. 25—Mrs. Antonie Enzler, who yesterday confessed she was the author of the anonymous letters which were sent to Miss Alta Rosenstiel and which were alleged to have been written by Dr. B. A. Arnold of this city, appeared in court this morning appeared to make a confession in open court, but the confession was not made, a recess having been taken until 2 p. m. Monday. The jurors were given the privilege of going to their homes over Sunday by Judge Landis. However they were instructed not to converse with anyone or to read anything regarding the case. All agreed to observe the instructions of the court in this regard.

The government officials were investigating the matter all night and they will make an investigation with the view of determining whether or not any undue influence was brought to bear on Mrs. Enzler to make her write the letters. Mrs. Enzler, who is a frail little woman, appeared quite calm while in court this morning and while she did not appear brazen in her attitude she acted quite differently than when she was led to the witness stand yesterday afternoon. She calmly took her seat behind the court railing and appeared to be in readiness to open conversation. She appeared, however, to be suffering from the terrible strain which has evidently been weighing on her since the letters were written.

More Sensations?

There promises to be other sensational developments in connection with the case, and a sweeping investigation has been instituted by the government under the leadership of Assistant District Attorney Godman and Krimbill.

DIED THIS MORN AT COUNTY FARM

Mrs. Christina Keenison died at the county farm this morning at 6 o'clock. The cause of her death was rheumatism. Mrs. Keenison came to the farm last May. She was born in Sweden and came to this country when a little girl. She will be buried at the farm Tuesday afternoon. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Mary Sumby, at Hillsdale, Mich.

FREY GETS DIXON BETTER SERVICE

POSTMASTER GETS PERMIT TO PUT EXPRESS POUCH ON NEW TRAIN.

Through the efforts of Postmaster Frey, Dixon citizens are again benefited by a bettered mail service, for today Mr. Frey received word that his request that an express pouch for Chicago may be taken east on Northwestern passenger train No. 29 which leaves Dixon at 11:08 a. m., had been granted, the new service commencing today. Prior to a few weeks ago eastbound mail was carried on train No. 14, but the change of schedule of that train to leave Dixon at 1:14 p. m. prevented the delivery the same day of mail sent on that train.

KEEPS STREET CLEAN.

Contractor W. J. McAlpine has received merited praise for the condition in which he keeps the street at the new National bank building. Every evening before work is stopped, a force of men is put at work removing the refuse which accumulates in the erection of so large a structure.

DEATH RESULT OF RUNAWAY INJURIES

THOMAS J. DREW PASSED AWAY SATURDAY EVENING—FUNERAL TUESDAY.

The venerable Thomas J. Drew of 1119 North Galena avenue, died at the Dixon hospital at 8:30 p. m. Saturday from injuries received in a runaway on the north end of the Galena avenue bridge Sunday, Oct. 12, in which he suffered a broken hip and internal injuries. The funeral will be held at the house at 9 a. m. Tuesday and at St. Patrick's Catholic church at 10 o'clock. Father Foley will officiate and interment will be in Oakwood.

Mr. Drew was born in County Cork, Ireland, Dec. 7, 1830, coming to America in 1851. He landed in New York May 20 of that year and resided there until March, 1855, when he went to California. As a gold miner he resided in the west until 1857 when he returned to New York, where on May 30 of that year he was married to Miss Margaret Thresa Cody. They moved to Illinois in 1865, Mr. Drew purchasing a farm near Woosung on which he resided until 1901 when he retired and moved to his late home in this city. He is survived by the widow, three sons and three daughters: Michael J., of Kimball, S. D.; Thomas S., an attorney of Degatur; George W., who resides on the home farm; Miss Anna of Chicago; Mrs. Thresa Brimblecomb of Woosung and Mrs. Elizabeth Sauer of Oregon. To them the condolence of many friends is tendered.

PLANS FIGHT ON HOG CHOLERA

SENATOR KENYON TO ASK CONGRESS FOR $1,000,000 TO WIPE OUT DISEASE.

Washington, Oct. 27—Special—Congress will take early action in the regular session to wipe out hog cholera in this country. Because of the tremendous loss of hogs from the disease Senator Kenyon of Iowa tomorrow will introduce a bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the study of methods to combat it.

Senator Kenyon provides in his bill that $300,000 shall be spent for the hire of farm experts in states affected by cholera and that $700,000 shall be spent for the study of the disease itself. The present appropriation for the study of cholera is but $150,000.

LOSES HIS LIFE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

NORMAN KELLY OF SYCAMORE KILLED WHEN CAR STRIKES A PIG AND TURNS TURTLE.

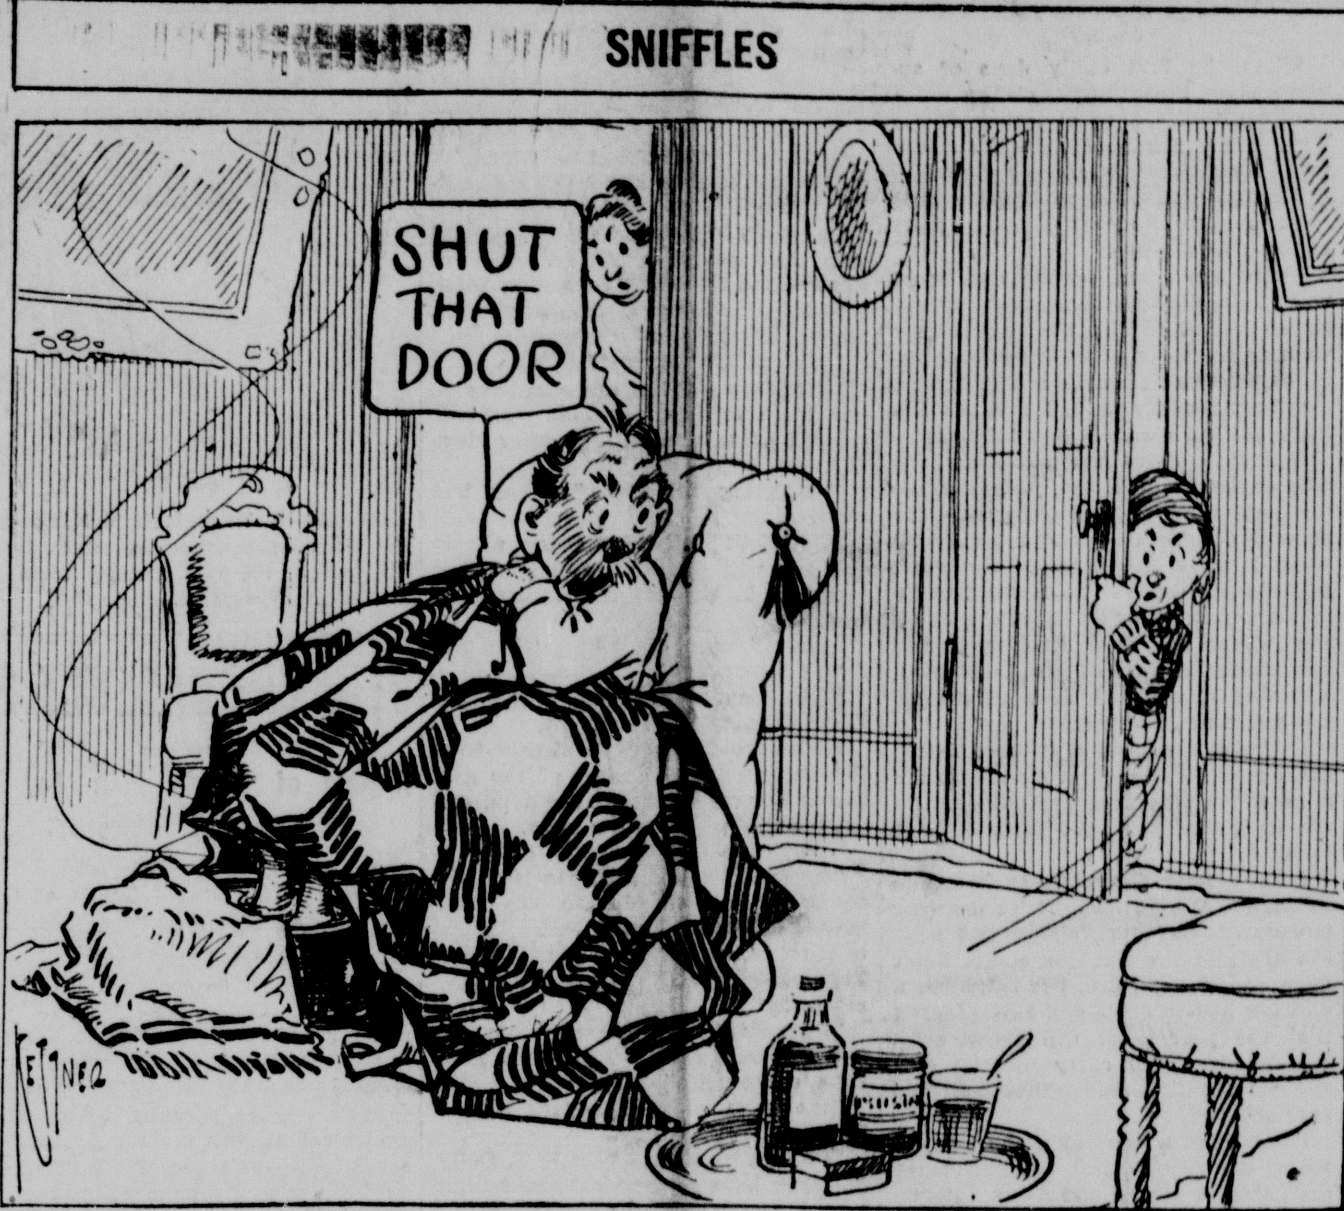

Sycamore, Oct. 27—Sycamore's first fatality in automobile accidents occurred last night when one man was instantly killed and two nearly so. Norman Kelly, a saloon man of this city, was killed. The party was returning to Sycamore from Genoa, when the auto struck a stray pig and turned turtle.

GALENA AVENUE HILL IS BAD FOR TRAFFIC

Teamsters are complaining that the pavement on the Galena avenue hill is becoming dangerously slippery because the edges of the bricks have been worn off by the traffic of years, and in all probability the matter of remedying the condition will be called to the attention of the city officials. There are many who believe that the application of asphalt to the brick, as has been used in the new work about the city, will remedy the condition.

ELI GAINING.

Eli Rosenthal, who is a patient at the Michael Reese hospital, Chicago, is much improved in health. He has gained ten pounds. Several of his Dixon friends have called on him.

Today Sheriff Wahl of the same county took the aged prisoner to Joliet, where he will begin an indeterminate term for the indecent treatment of two little girls in the school where he has been working, to which charge he pleaded guilty before Judge Ramsay Saturday.

Civil War Veteran.

Maxfield is a veteran of the civil war, married and has grandchildren. His reputation has been the very best and until this episode he occupied a position of high esteem in the community. He has been janitor of the schools for many years.

Girls Are All Small.

The girls are all of extreme youth, ranging from nine to twelve years, according to stories told by their parents and the aged man's actions have covered a period of nearly two years.

GUARDIAN MUST BE NAMED FOR MINOR HEIRS SAYS FARRAND

CIRCUIT COURT UPHOLDS COUNTY JUDGE SCOTT IN ESTABLISHING PRECEDENT.

LUTZ WILL IS HELD VALID

The Question Has Never Been Presented to Courts of the State Before.

Judge R. S. Farrand in the circuit court today held that in all cases of the probate of wills, in which there are minor heirs, it is the duty of the probate court to appoint a guardian ad litem (during litigation) to represent such children, thereby upholding Judge R. H. Scott of the Lee county court and aiding in establishing a precedent for the state of Illinois, for this question has never before been brought before the courts of the state.

Following Judge Scott's order, upheld by Judge Farrand, the county court jurist established rules which will undoubtedly be adopted throughout the state, to the effect that hereafter all petitions to probate wills must be drawn by attorneys, that the petitions must show the legal minor heirs and their age, and that a guardian ad litem must be appointed for all such minor heirs. However, because of the statutory limitations, Judge Scott, in the county court, could not admit the will to probate, and Attorneys Harry Edwards of this city and C. E. Preston of Pawnee carried it to the circuit court, thereby bringing about the precedent of the action of a probate and a chancery court on the vital question, and winning a notable victory.

The Decision.

Because of the importance of the question, which will certainly affect the probate of wills throughout the state and raise much litigation in probate matters that have been acted upon within the past five years, the Telegraph publishes Judge Farrand's opinion in full:

On January 10, 1911, John Lutz, a resident of Lee county, Illinois, made and executed his last will and testament, and thereafter on January 11, 1913, departed this life. The said will, so executed by him, was filed for probate in the county court of said county in February, 1913, and on March 3 following, upon a hearing in that court, the will was refused probate.

In July, 1913, a petition was duly filed in said probate court by one of the heirs, asking that the previous order denying probate of said will, be

DIXON HUNTERS ARE ACCUSED OF TRESPASS

DEPUTIES TAGUE AND RABBITT CAPTURE TWO NEAR NELSON SUNDAY.

Deputy Game and Fish Wardens Wm. Tague of this city and Charles Rabbitt of Amboy, acting under orders from Warden A. M. Glavin of Sterling, encamped at the Phillips Bros.' farm near Nelson Sunday and captured two Dixon men who are alleged to have been hunting on the place despite the notices posted at all entrances that hunting on the premises was forbidden. The men, whose names are withheld pending further proceedings, are accused of trespass.

It is reported that the owners of the farm are loath to prosecute the men, although they claim to have lost some stock through the carelessness of people who have trespassed on their land in the past, while Warden Glavin is insisting that the two be prosecuted.

STARS FAIR HAD SUCCESSFUL END

BASEBALL ENTERTAINMENT WAS WELL PATRONIZED ON SATURDAY.

The Dixon Stars' baseball fair, which closed Saturday night, was most successful in every way and as a result the members of the team are especially thankful to all who assisted with their attendance and good will, and a special vote of thanks was tendered Landlord McCarty of the Dixon Inn, who remembered the boys with a donation of $5. It is not yet known just how much was netted by the week's entertainment, but the profits will be used to boost the game here next summer.

MRS. ANDRUS LEAVES.

Mrs. Leonard Andrus, who has been visiting friends here for the past three months, left this morning for Minneapolis, where she will spend a few days before going to her home in Portland, Ore.

DIXON OUTCLASSED MT. MORRIS TEAM

WON EASILY SATURDAY AFTERNOON BY A SCORE OF 57 TO 6.

The Dixon union high school football team demonstrated its worth most convincingly on Saturday afternoon by outclassing the Mt. Morris combination high school-college team and winning easily by a one-sided score, 56 to 7. At no time from the start of the game, which was witnessed by a large crowd, did the visitors have a "look in" and as the Dixon team continued piling up score after score, almost at will, the game lost its interest in everything but the perfection to which Coach Hogan has worked the Dixon machine.

In every department of the game the Dixon lads played great football. The defense was something fine to look at, and on the offensive side they excelled in both straight football and open play. The lineup of the Dixon team was:

Curran, re,
Church, rt,
Dixon, rg,
Lennox, c,
Beier, lg,
Kurtzrock, lt,
Dollahan, le,
Ackert, qb,
Schrock, rbb,
McCarty, lbb,
Byers, fb.

ACADEMY BEATS ROCHELLE'S SECOND

LOCAL MILITARY BOYS WIN IN A WELL MATCHED GAME AT ROCHELLE SATURDAY.

With a crippled team the Rock River Military Academy defeated the second team of the Rochelle high school in a football game Saturday at Rochelle, score 12 to 6.

The academy regular back field, with the exception of Birks and Warner, felt a little sore from beating the Dixon union high school team on Tuesday by a score of 7 to 6. Birks made a touchdown and West a good kick or the academy.

Saturday's game was a good one. With but two touchdowns made by Birks and Brown, the academy's final score was 12 while all Rochelle could get was 6.

Academy Lineup—

Taubert, le
McCarthy, lt
Allison, lg
Milby, c
Lullo, rg
Hoffman, rt

TIE VOTE ON THAT CONCRETE WATERWAY

MAYOR BRINTON SEEKS TO HAVE ALL PROCEEDINGS VACATED—VOTE 2 TO 2

FILES ORDINANCE FOR REPEAL

Continues Fight Against Arching Ditch and Pavement On Highland Avenue.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID

Adopted resolution plotting the Boswell property on E. McKinney street, which is owned by the Presbyterian church, into lots.

Delivered the vote on Mayor Brinton's resolution to abandon the concrete waterway and pavement on Highland avenue and the tributary streets.

Mayor Brinton continued his fight against the concrete waterway over the ditch in Highland avenue from First street to Commercial alley, the pavement of that street and Commercial alley, thence east to Peoria avenue, and Peoria avenue from First street to River street, when at this morning's session of the council he introduced a resolution providing for the abandonment of the proceedings and instructing the city attorney to secure the vacation of all orders that have been entered by the county court in the proceedings. The vote was a tie, Commissioner Schuler being absent on his vacation. Mayor Brinton and Commissioner Gannon voted to adopt the resolution while Commissioners Schmidt and Van Bibber voted against it.

The mayor was undaunted, however, and immediately filed with the city clerk an ordinance providing for the repeal of the former ordinance, No. 154, which fathers the improvement on which the vote will be called next Monday. Another tie vote is in prospect as Mr. Schuler will not return by that time.

Plot Boswell Place.

A petition, accompanied by a plot of the lots in the Ann Boswell property on E. McKinney street, which was bequeathed to the Presbyterian church, asking that the property be legally plotted was adopted. Since the inheritance of this property by the church a number of lots have been sold to various people and the action of the council was necessary because of the confusion that results from special assessments, etc.

Ladies First.
Going to the blackboard the teacher wrote this sentence, "The horse and the cow was in the stable."

"Now children," she said, "there is something wrong with that sentence. Who can correct it and tell why it is wrong?"

Jimmy responded that he knew, and so he said:

"It's wrong because it ought to be 'the cow and the horse' was in the stable," because the ladies always always ought to go in first."

A Bum Shot.

"Did those moth balls I recommended kill the moths?" asked the druggist.

"No," retorted the customer, "I sat up nearly all night and didn't hit a single moth."

Rather Doubtful.

"Won't you be very, very happy when your sentence is over?" cheerfully asked the woman of a convict in prison.

"I dunno, Mum, I dunno," gloomily answered the man.

"You don't know?" was the woman's amazed answer. "Why not?"

"I'm in for life."

Today was a cold one. And Sunday was beyond description.

Mrs. John Horrigan and son Jack have gone to Chicago to visit friends.

Lowery and Murry went hunting Saturday. Lowery says he shot a rabbit but how about Murry? They say that Murry, who had a borrowed gun brought the weapon home badly shattered, from throwing it at a rabbit.

Harm Wrought by Athletics.

A study of 625 athletes of the Naval Academy and training school for the ten years ending last year shows twenty-one deaths, six from consumption, eight from nervous diseases, two from alcohol and two from heart disease—heart trouble brought on by too much running. Football caused one death. But worst of all, among the other 604 athletes are 198 who have had officially recorded injuries supposed to be brought about by athletics.

One-third of the 198 had troubles of the heart—shrinkage of the heart, loose valves, fast and irregular beating of the heart and bagginess of the heart.

In 16 of the 198 the joints of the legs or arms were out of order, and 17 had either active or sleeping consumption. Eleven had kidney disease and 16 were sufferers from nervousness and stomach trouble.—New York Press.

What Made the Squirrel Like Him?

Prince Paul Troubetsky, the scup-tor, carries a pet about with him. Prince Troubetsky was lunching in New York when one of the company demanded that the prince show the others the animal that was in his possession. Forthwith the prince, to the astonishment of the company, pulled out of an inner pocket a little squirrel. He said that ten days before, while in Cleveland, he had noticed the squirrel in the street and had approached it. To his surprise, instead of running away, it made toward him and allowed him to take it up. Later in the day he took it to the park, where he wished to set it free, but the squirrel would not leave him.

Imagination.

The faculty of imagination is the great spring of human activity, and the principal source of human improvement. As it delights in presenting to the mind scenes and characters more perfect than those which we are acquainted with, it prevents us from ever being completely satisfied with our present condition, or with our past attainments, and engages us continually in the pursuit of some untired enjoyment, or of some ideal excellence.

Hence the ardor of the selfish to better their fortunes, and to aid to their personal accomplishments, and hence the zeal of the patriot and the philosopher, to advance the virtue and the happiness of the human race. Destroy this faculty, and the condition of man will become as stationary as that of brutes.—Dugald Stewart.

Mignonette Tree.

Few mignonette lovers appear to realize that a plant of this so fragrant flower may be preserved from year to year until it becomes a little tree. You take a strong plant from seeds sown in the month of April, put in a pot all alone, and whenever and wherever it attempts to show a blossom nip it off without remorse. At the end of September or the beginning of October cut off all the bottom shoots to make it look like a tree; move it into a larger pot and put it in the greenhouse. Water it regularly and keep it moderately warm. Treat it in the same way the following year, cutting off all the lower shoots and blossoms, and you will have a mignonette tree that will last and bloom for years.

BUILDING A FIRE

An Accomplishment Most Persons Can Learn.

It Looks Easy, but It Requires Special Methods—Two Recipes from England, Where Coal and Not Wood Is Customary Fuel.

When the first chilly days of autumn come, the open fire claims much of the affection and attention of the household. For nothing is so cheerful, so comfortable and so beautiful to look upon as a fire of logs crackling on the hearth, or of glowing coals burning in a grate.

There are some women and some men, as well, who think they do not know how to light a fire; so, if they want to be warm or want to be cheerful or want to watch the crackling fire, they must needs wait for some one more skillful than they to build it.

Doubtless there are some persons who cannot build a fire, just as there are some who cannot make geraniums grow and some others whose cake always falls in the baking. But most persons, if they will take the trouble to learn a thing or so about the chimney where they are building a fire, and about the ways of fires in general, will find themselves able to master the art of fire making.

Every one knows, of course, that a draft is one of the first essentials for a good fire, dry fuel is another. So see to it that you have them both at hand.

Even a poor chimney can be made to harbor a good fire. If its drawing powers are not good, cuddle and coax the fire past the smoking stage. Don't burn all wood fire, but establish a glowing bed of coals and rest assured that the poor draft will prove sufficiently strong to carry off the coal gas and the little smoke that the coals give off.

Often even a good chimney smokes when the fire is first built, because the chimney is cold and damp. If you are sure that there is a substantial layer of fireproof construction between the chimney and any framework about the house, light a crumpled sheet of newspaper and thrust it as far up the chimney as you can reach. Light half a dozen of these in succession and you will have the chimney warm enough to start a smokeless fire.

On a damp day this same newspaper warning process might be used to advantage, as much moisture and dampness collect in the chimney in fogs and rains.

There must always be room for air to circulate under and behind the fire. If you have andirons your task is simple. Simply place the logs so that room is left behind them for the air to circulate; the andirons hold them high enough to let the air circulate under them. If there are no andirons and no coal basket—a very good fire of logs can be built in a coal basket—lay two stout sticks like andirons and build the fire on top.

Have plenty of kindling—paper, shavings, excelsior, dry sticks, pine knots or chips—and let this get well lighted before you pile on logs or coal.

Here is an English recipe for lighting a coal fire—and the English who use coal to the exclusion of wood should be authorities on the subject. Put some cinders in the bottom of the grate. These insure circulation of air, for they are porous and do not cake down. Over them put a couple of sheets of newspaper, crumpled loosely and lay ten sticks of dry wood on the paper. Put the fire well back in the grate, but allow room behind it for circulation of air. When it is crackling, put on a shovelful of coal, and repeat this process until the grate is sufficiently filled with fire.

Another English method of fire lighting is to light the fire from the top and let it burn downward—which at first sounds something like scooping up water with a sieve. This is how it is done: Put a layer of cinders in the bottom of the grate and cover these with a good bed of coal. Then lay dry sticks—a dozen or so—loosely over the coals. Put on a shovelful of coal and then put half a dozen sheets of crumpled paper on top. Light the paper and watch the fire burn downward.

Wholesale Slaughter.

"I'll tell you a funny one that's absolutely true," said Bunney Brewer, who has headed the back-to-the-soil movement and recently taken up a homestead on an abandoned hog killing farm. "Last fall, along about hog killing time, we had some folks from the city out here and a likely looking gal—now quicker kiddin'—came out to see how I started the day's chores."

"We'll be awful busy today, lady," says I.

"What are you going to do?" says she.

"We're going to kill a cow."

"What—a whole cow at once?"

"What do you think of that? Maybe she thought we were going to butcher a tenderloin steak!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DOLLY'S AUNT PRUDENCE

By S. E. BAKER.

"We simply must have that lot," Frank Horton had said to his discouraged partner. "If we hope to remain in real estate business, we must never let a woman's refusal to sell stand in the way of a deal of the magnitude of this. That weed-grown, V-shaped strip of land isn't doing her the least bit of good, and yet she ties up our sale of that North Columbus property of the Driving Park association through her refusal to unload."

"We can't make her sell," his partner, Tom Haines, had answered despondently. "And she says she won't—for any amount of money. And you know there is no use reasoning when a woman is stubborn. She won't even answer my letters."

"Who is the woman?"

"Prudence Grimes, and she lives in the little town of Suffolk. An old maid, I guess, and with peculiar ideas of her sort."

"I'm going out there," Frank had averred.

At Suffolk he left his coach, almost colliding with a tall, pretty light-haired girl just in the act of boarding the train.

"Dolly!"

"All a-b-o-a-r-d!"

Suffolk is a small town. Trains stop there for about one moment.

Frank drew the natty suit case from the half-paralyzed fingers of the girl, seized her resolutely by the arm, and drew her away from the train.

"Why—the very idea!"

The maid flushed indignantly as the conductor shut the door of the vestibule, and the wheels beneath it began to turn. "Look what you have done, Frank Horton. You've made me miss my train."

"Undoubtedly." The young six-footer's lips were compressed. "I want a little conversation with you."

"We have nothing to talk about." The girl spoke coldly.

"Oh, but we have. Why is it, Dolly, that you have never wrote me? And how comes it that you are here?"

"My aunt lives here, if you must know. And as far as writing is concerned, I didn't write—well, just because."

"I can see a bench in that little park," said Horton with seeming irrelevance. "Let us go over there and try to come to some sort of an understanding."

"No, I'll not," declared Miss Dolly, in a voice with just a suspicion of a quiver in it.

The quiver was the flaw in the armor. In three seconds she was doing just what Horton had suggested and the youth was sitting beside her.

"And now," Horton insisted, "you must tell me three things: why you left Chicago so hastily, what you are doing here, and why you have never written me?"

"I shall do nothing of the kind," angrily denied the maid.

"But you will," Horton's tone was positive.

"Anyway, I have been taught never to write to a man until he has written to me first."

Horton looked his disgust. "As if," he parried, "I were possessed to some psychic gift to tell me where you were. This is the last place in the world I would look for you. Fate is against you—and I insist upon the answer to my question. The answer that you wouldn't give me in Chicago."

"My, how terrible it has become," said Dolly mockingly, and then, more decidedly, and with a hint of anger, "who gave you the right to speak to me so, Mr. Frank Horton? I'll answer your question or not—just as I choose."

"But Dolly"—the man's voice was humble now—"there isn't any reason at all in not answering." He reached over and took one of her hands. "Why didn't you tell me that you were coming away, Dolly?"

"I didn't know, Frank. Really, boy, you are too impatient."

"But your answer," insisted Horton. "You haven't given it to me—and I am waiting."

Two starry eyes turned to analyze the man. "There are none so blind," half whispered a gentle voice, "as those who will not see."

"You mean?" he demanded eagerly.

"I'm not going to tell you what I mean," pouted the girl. "And to think that I ever imagined you to be smart. I am going to take you up to the house to meet my aunt and have you explain your boorish conduct."

"Then your aunt really lives here?"

"Yes, it is on her account that I came back here and left Chicago so hurriedly. She is such a suspicious person! A concern calling itself the Keystone Realty company has been trying to buy an absolutely worthless piece of property from her, and after she had refused several offers, they made her a positively startling one. She called me from Chicago to consult with her—I am her only relative, you know. I advised her to accept, and today she sent a letter to that effect. She—"

"What is her name?" gasped Horton.

"Miss Prudence Grimes. Why, what on earth is the matter, Frank Horton, stop that!"

But joyous youth was not to be restrained. Seizing the startled girl in his arms, Horton pressed his lips to her cheek.

Don't Wake Her.

"No man is perfect," declared the philosopher.

"True; but there is no use trying to convince a June bride—during June," remarked the cynic.

DYNAMITE CASE OCT. 29

Appeal of Thirty Men to Be Heard on Wednesday.

Union Officials Found Guilty of Conspiracy in Series of Explosions to Fight for New Trial.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Officers and members of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers who were found guilty of conspiracy and of illegally transporting explosives in the famous dynamiting cases will open their case before the United States circuit court of appeals Wednesday. Thirty men seek an appeal of their case.

Of the nine others, the sentences of six were suspended by Federal Judge Anderson of Indianapolis, before whom the men were convicted; and three have elected to serve their sentences and have done with it. Most of the thirty are out on bonds of $10,000 for each year of their sentences, awaiting action by the court which sits Wednesday. They will know their fate probably by Saturday, as the court has given government and defense each a day and a half for argument.

These convictions grew out of a series of dynamiting of "open shop" structural iron works, extending from December 1, 1906, to August 27, 1910, and culminating in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times plant, where 21 persons were killed, followed by the arrest and confession of the McNamara brothers and Orrie McManigal, which led to wholesale arrests.

ELECTION SEES SIX KILLED

Scores Injured in Italian Riots; Government Victory Assured.

Rome, Oct. 27.—In the general election throughout Italy, in which the new electoral law providing for almost universal manhood suffrage was tested and brought to the polls more than 8,000,000 voters, the victory of the government is assured, but there will be many rebuffs on November 2, as in many districts no candidate obtained the requisite proportion of the total vote cast.

The election at Rome was quiet, but there was rioting in many places, especially in the south, notably at Caserta, Aversa, Amalfi, Palermo, Catania and Bari. Altogether six persons were killed and scores injured more or less seriously.

The Socialist leader, Bissolati, was elected in the district of Rome which includes the quirinal and the royal palace. Professor Baccelli also was elected. At Palermo, Nunzio Nasi, the former minister of public instruction, unseated for defalcation of public funds, was re-elected. The other three Rome districts went to anti-Socialists.

Giovanni Giolitti, the premier, has been re-elected almost unanimously with the other members of his cabinet. Others elected include ex-Premier Baron Sidney Sonnino and Luigi Luzzatti, the ex-governor of Elythra; Ferdinando Martini, the Socialist leader; Leonida Bissolati-Bergamaschi, the Republican leader, and Sig. Barzilai.

HOLD NEW HAVEN WRECK QUIZ

Definitely Determined Crash in Which Twenty Persons Were Hurt.

Westerly, R. I., Oct. 27.—Investigations of the wreck of the Gilt Edge, express on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad near here, in which more than twenty persons were injured, were begun by the public utilities commission and by the railroad officials. It was definitely determined that the derailment of the train was caused by a broken rail. In the "ball," as railroad men call the wheels rest, a black substance resembling carbon, was discernible.

Shot and Killed in Quarrel.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 27.—At Cave-in-Rock, Ill., William January of this city, a steamboat engineer, was shot and killed by William Blanford, a fireman, during a quarrel.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are always better than all other soda crackers, always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every biscuit—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked. Five cents.

SHORT SENTENCES FOR HIM

Writer Gives Good Advice to His Followers in the Following Simple Words.

Writers who wish to impart to their productions power and pungency, who wish to keep the reader's attention upon the tip-toe of activity, who desire to escape the imputation of pedantry and who seek to surcharge their sentences with sparkle and spirit will do well to bear in mind constantly that long, lingering sentences, unduly overburdened with an abundance of phrases, clauses and parenthetical observations of a more or less digressive character, are apt to be tiresome to the reader, especially if the subject-matter be at all profound or ponderous, to place an undue strain upon his powers of concentration and to leave him with a confused concept of the ideas which the writer apparently has been at great pains to concentrate; while short, snappy sentences, on the other hand, with the frequent recurrence of subject and predicate, thus recalling and emphasizing the idea to be expressed as the development of the thought proceeds, like numerous signposts upon an untraveled road, these frequent breaks having the effect of taking a new hold upon the reader's attention, oases in the desert of words, as it were, will be found to be much more effective, much more conducive to preserve the contact, the wireless connection, so to speak, between the writer and the reader; provided, however, and it is always very easy to err through a too strict and literal application of a general rule, that the sentences are not so short as to give a jerky, choppy and sketchy effect and to scatter the reader's attention so often as to send him wool-gathering completely.—Ellis O. Jones in Life.

MISTAKES OF A SCIENTIST

Sir George Airy's Predictions About Atlantic Cable and Big Ben Were Proved Wrong.

Sir George Biddell Airy, British astronomer royal, told the pioneers of the first Atlantic cable that it was a mathematical impossibility to submerge the cable to the necessary depth, and if it were possible no signals could travel through so great a distance. Sir George was also asked about the possibility of making Big Ben, the great clock in the tower above the houses of parliament, so trustworthy that it would not lose five seconds a day on the average. He replied that no clock exposed to the weather could run with so small an error. The late Lord Grimthorpe, however, said he would guarantee the degree of exactness, and by designing a timepiece that is never five seconds out with the observatory at Greenwich, to which it signals its time each day, and on most days is dead true.

Bread, a La United States.

This is the way to make official bread, given out by the chief cook of the department of agriculture, Miss Hannah Wessler:

"For three-pound loaves—Make ferment of one-ounce cake compressed yeast, one ounce granulated sugar, half-ounce salt, and twenty ounces water. Place in even temperature for an hour. Weigh 4½ pounds flour, and let it warm. Mix flour and ferment together. Cover mixture and warm for twenty minutes."

"If dough is too stiff, add lukewarm water. After twenty minutes more take up dough with hands slightly greased, and fold over and over fourteen times. Cover, set aside for twenty minutes, then fold nine times."

"After twenty minutes more, mould into loaves, and bake forty minutes in a steady oven 400 to 410 degrees Fahrenheit. A cup of water in the oven will make a tenderer crust."

CHOCOLATE PLANT IS NATIVE

Has Been Cultivated in Many Countries, But It Undoubtedly Originated in America.

The chocolate plant is a native of America. When first introduced into Europe chocolate was used only as a luxury, but it speedily advanced in popular esteem. It is now cultivated in countries far from its original home. The chocolate plant, as well as tea and coffee, has been cultivated from time immemorial. Chocolate as a beverage rapidly made its way in Europe, beginning in Spain, whither it was first brought.

The seeds of the chocolate plant are in pods. In preparing the seeds for market there has been but little change since early times. First the seeds are allowed to ferment, and thus they lose the slight bitterness which they possess when fresh. Then they are carefully dried, and in this condition they stand transparent. In manufacturing the seeds or beans are roasted, by which process the shell of the seed becomes detachable from the kernel, which is the part used. Next the roasted kernels are ground.

In early times the Mexicans used the flat stones on which their maize was ground for the grinding of the roasted seeds of chocolate. Chocolate consists of the roasted, shelled and ground seeds. Sweet chocolate is the same with the addition of sugar and flavoring extracts. Cocoa consists of the roasted and ground seeds from which the oil has been removed. Experiments have shown that if the seeds are rightly treated from the first to the last stage of manufacture no objection can be urged against the beverage produced from them. It is of importance that these seeds should be grown and selected with the greatest care and should, after reaching the factory, receive the most careful and skillful treatment.—Harper's Weekly.

FOR UNIFORM ROAD LAWS

Canada to Join Hands With the United States if Premier Borden Approves the Idea.

Canada will be represented with the United States in an endeavor to obtain uniform laws pertaining to road building, if the proposition meets the approval of Premier Borden, according to an announcement made at the American Road congress by A. W. Campbell, deputy minister of railways and canals for the Canadian government. Mr. Campbell said that he would use his influence in urging the premier to consent to the appointment of a committee to confer with a committee representing the American Highway association and the American Bar association to evolve a plan for uniform road laws.

"I realize that in Canada, as well as throughout the United States, we have 40 varieties of road laws for every province," said Mr. Campbell. "This tends to retard real road work, and I heartily indorse any plan that would bring about practically the same laws for both the United States and Canada relative to good roads."

ELECTRIC WAVE FIRES MINE

Secret Experiment by British Government Reported Successful.

London, Oct. 27.—An experiment conducted secretly in the Solent as to the possibility of exploding mines by means of electric waves without direct contact is said to have been highly successful. The method is variously reported to have been Ulivi's invention and other inventions of a similar nature. The old cruiser Terpsichore, with her water-tight compartments closed, was placed over a mine, and when the explosion was effected it tore the bottom out of the ship, and she had to be hurriedly towed to Portsmouth to prevent her from sinking. It is said that the work was accomplished from a battleship eight miles distant.

Demand Too Much.

As a nation we are intolerant of rest. If we have a brilliant man, we insist upon his always shining. We want our rose bushes to bloom all the year 'round, we would have our trees all bearing fruit, and our suns always shining. We kill three-fourths of our truly great men in the prime of life by expecting and exacting too much of them, and then call the legitimate results of our forcing system a dis pensation of Providence. Like the earth, minds must lie fallow at times. Perpetual crops will exhaust any soil, and perpetual excitement will wear out any mind or body.—Waverly Maga zine.

Cat Put On Vicious Fight.

While calling at a friend's ranch the other day, a young Italian nobleman, who is ranching near Monterey, Cal., was attacked by a huge Maltese cat, a pet of the household, and severely bitten on the hand and in the back. He was walking up the steps of the house when the cat attacked him. The animal sank its teeth into the fleshy part of his back and clung to him with bulldog tenacity. In attempting to pull the cat off his back, the victim was bitten on the hand. The cat followed him to the gate, and he was obliged to use a club to drive it off.

Much Required of Physicians.

In Beloochistan when a physician gives a dose he is expected to par take of a similar one himself as a guarantee of his good faith. Should the patient die under his hands the relatives, though they rarely exercise it, have the right of putting him to death, unless a special agreement has been made for freeing him from all responsibility as to consequences; while, if they should decide upon im molating him, he is expected to yield to his fate like a man.

Only Problem of Happiness.

"Real happiness is so simple that most people do not recognize it. They think it comes from doing something on a big scale, from a big fortune, or from some great achievement, when, in fact, it is derived from the simplest, the quietest, the most unpretentious things in the world. Our great prob lem is to fill each day so full of sun shine, of plain living and high think ing, that there can be no commonness or unhappiness in our lives."—Orison Sweet Marden.

Calls for Persistence.

"There are no cut-and-dried rules for making advertising successful. Each man has to work out, in a large measure, his own salvation. There is, however, one sure way to make it pay, and that is by persistence and com mon sense. There are no substitutes for these elements in advertising or anything else for that matter."—Jed Scarboro.

HER PUZZLING MANNER

By H. M. GARDNER.

"Nell—if you don't mind, I'm going to—lodge, tonight."

The words were out at last. Not daring to look at her, I gulped the steaming coffee and covertly over the edge of the cup gave her a quick glance. In stead of tears, greatly to my sur prise, a pleased expression illumined her face. Arising, she swept over to me and threw her arms lovingly about my shoulders.

"Do go, Jack; it will do you good. I'll not be at all afraid to remain here."

She was very insistent on my going and later as I walked to the club I could not help thinking of her eagerness to get me off. We had been married but a few months and this was the first night that I had left her alone. Her manner, to say the least, puzzled me.

But Nell's actions, however, were soon forgotten. At the club, I was hailed as one back from the dead. The boys crowded about me, chaffed good-naturedly about giving the "old lady" the slip and welcomed me into their midst with open arms. Once more I was the reckless, fun-loving, devil-may-care fellow that my friends had known.

The banquet broke up, but I did not go home. The night air was glorious. Never had I known night to possess such alluring charm. A party of six kindred spirits set out to "do the town." A masque ball was being held in a nearby hall and we broke in upon the dance.

A dainty little creature robed in quaint Japanese costume, coyly ap proached on tip toes and chucking me under the chin, flitted gayly away. I tried to pursue, but Mephisto in flam ing red, with a demure little black draped nun in his arms, laughingly bumped me back into the crowd.

I stood fascinated. All about me was life—a life that I had once known. Gro tesque and fanciful attired maskers, waltzed and paraded before me.

I tried to join in their march—but a dull sickening feeling overcame me. I suddenly awakened to my true self and my thoughts returned to Nell—dear trusting girl, awaiting alone at home for my return. With conscience severely pricking I turned to leave the hall.

A girl attired in red; red dress, red slippers, red gloves, red hat and red mask, flitted past me. I stopped ab ruptly. The figure was strangely fa miliar. I stood, bewildered, puzzled—and then, as my gaze followed the red masked figure whirling about the ball room, my breath came quick and short.

"Ah! I saw it all, now. I saw why she was so anxious I should go to lodge. Never could I have dreamed of such a thing—such treachery, such wanton deceit. But here—"

The music ceased playing and the dancers were leaving the floor. Lean ing on the arm of a cavalier, she en tered the palm room.

I walked quickly across the floor and savagely brushed aside the cur tains.

I staggered back, clutching the draperies for support. My head seemed to swing and a mist gathered before my eyes.

The fellow had deliberately kissed her.

There they sat, her head resting contentedly on his shoulder and he holding her in tight embrace.

A few swift strides and I stood before them. The man, angry at my intrusion, attempted to arise, but before he could do so, I seized him by the shoulders and with almost super human strength, hurled him from me, sprawling to the floor. Turning I gazed at his companion, who covered trembling in the seat.

"So this was why you were so eager that I should go to lodge? Wanted to meet this chivalrous lover of yours, eh?"

Fearfully her hand sought the mask as if to remove it, but after a mo ment's pause, fell mechanically back into her lap.

"Can't you speak; can't you talk?" I cried. "Let's see your face—let's see if it has any shame in it?"

Reaching forward with a savage jerk I tore away the mask.

The revelation staggered me. "Beheld—not my wife—but the cook."

She had appropriated jewelry and wardrobe from the mistress.

Digging for Pipe Bowls. Merchaum is extracted in precise ly the same way as coal. Pits from 25 feet to 125 feet deep are dug, and as soon as the vein is struck hori zontal galleries, sometimes of consid erable length, are made, though more than two galleries are seldom to be found in one pit. When taken out of the mine merchaum is soft enough to be easily cut with a knife. It is im bedded in a layer of red clay several inches thick, and in this state it is sold to the dealers.

Chinese Workers in Cuba.

John Chinaman is ubiquitous in Ha vana. The census of 1899 shows a Chinese population of 2,751, and here as elsewhere they are industrious members of the community. China men are seen carrying burdens swung from balanced shoulder poles along the manner of their native country. On the outskirts of the city and in the suburbs are extensive Chinese truck farms. The market garden in dustry is largely in their hands. The Chinese quarter is in Zanja and Agulla streets. The Chinese theater is in Zanja street. The Chinese in Cuba are reminders of the coolie trade which brought here hundreds of thousands to virtual slavery. They were imported under a contract to serve eight years at $4 a month, and the planters paid $400 for them.—Hav ana Post.

Age of the Gambler.

The eighteenth century was the age of the great gamblers. On February 6, 1772, there was a debate in the house of commons on the 39 articles, and it was noticed that Fox spoke very indifferently. Horace Walpole sug gests an explanation: "He had sat up playing at hazard at Almack's from Tuesday evening, the 4th, till 5 in the afternoon of Wednesday, the 5th. An hour before he had recovered £12,000 that he had lost; and by dinner, which was at 5 o'clock, he had ended losing £11,000. On the Thursday, he spoke in the above debate, went to dinner at 11:30 at night, from there to White's, where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to Almack's, where he won £6,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out for Newmarket.—London Chronicle.

Made Study of Dictionary.

To read a dictionary twice through for pleasure, as Lord Chatham did, is not a tempting suggestion. But there is a hint in Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff's diary of 1877, when he was doing a good deal of train traveling on the continent. "In these last days I have been exceedingly amused by Brachet's 'Etymological Dictionary,' which Henry Smith recommended to me when I was in Oxford the other day, and which is a perpetual suc cession of pleasant surprises. It is an admirable railway book for one who can only read at the stations." As the lord said who dipped into the dictionary while waiting for Sir Walter Scott, the dictionary stories are "unco short."—London Chronicle.

HOW TO PLACE THE MIRROR

One Should Be Hung in a Dark Hall Where It Will Serve a Triple Purpose.

Always place a mirror in a dark hall. If it can be so placed that it re flects the opening into the living or drawingroom, it will serve a triple pur pose—it will be a convenience to the guests and members of the family when they are starting out, it will in crease the light and it will make the hall seem bigger.

In a living room place several mir rors, if the room is dark. Place them in rather unexpected places. A long narrow mirror can be hung length wise, perhaps in a corner beside a door. Another mirror can be placed on a wall opposite a window and so will reflect the garden or trees or sea or street and give the room appar ently another window. Another mirror can be placed at such an angle that it will not necessarily reflect the people sitting about the fire. The object of living room mirrors is not to give re flections of the persons in the room, and such reflections are sometimes an noying.

In bedrooms and dressing rooms mir rors cannot be too many. A pier glass is convenient, and especially desir able because it can be placed across a corner of the room or in some other position which makes it of decorative value. But far more practical in a small room—and cheaper, too—is the mirror fastened to the door. It should be held in place by the wooden panel ing.

MARY'S LAMB UP TO DATE

As Told by London Newspaper in What Might Aptly Be Described as Bostonese English.

Miss Mary was the possessor of a diminutive and immature specimen of the Ovis Arles, a wool-bearing and ruminant quadruped, whose flesh is highly esteemed by persons to whose gustatory organs its flavor is agree able.

The shaggy and agglomerated fila ments constituting in their collective capacity its natural outer covering, in tegument, or garment, presented to the vision a surface absolutely etio lated and albified, and rivaling in im maculateness the lustrous mantle of crystallized vapor that commonly char acterizes the winter landscape.

And to whatsoever locality, contigu ous or remote, whither Mary's vagrant fancy, the call of duty, or perhaps the parental mandate impelled her, when not otherwise engaged, to be take herself, this juvenescent repre sentative of the genus Ovis Arles, with a fidelity remarkable in one so immature and inexperienced, could be counted upon with absolute and entire certainty to accompany her.—London Tit-Bits.

With the Invalid.

A nursery ice box in the sick room is a convenience not only to the in valid but to the nurse. A bottle of wa ter can always be kept there on hand for drinking. Milk, too, can be kept on tap, and other food can be stored there from day to day. Any tin box can be made to serve as a nursery ice box. If you have an old bread box, use that. Put a pan in the bottom of it, and lay a wire cake tray, the sort that you put in the oven to hold cake or bread tins, over the pan. Put the ice on the tray, and the melting water will drain into the pan. This, of course, must be emptied whenever it is full. Put milk and water in the bottom of the box, and put other things around the ice, on the wire tray. There is an ice blanket which helps keep the ice from melting and so reduces the cost of ice, and one of these would be useful in the nursery ice box. It is wrapped about the ice or spread over it, and it is said that it is as durable as it is convenient.

Buttons From the Tagua Palm.

Does the average well-dressed man know that the buttons he wears are made of the fruit of the South Amer ican tagua palm, which produces ivory nuts? The latest bulletin of the Pan American Union tells of the annual "button crop" of Guayaquil and other South American countries. The year ly export of Ecuador alone is 20,000 tons, all to be made into buttons that will match every hue and pattern of men's and women's dress. By means of steel dies and coloring material the texture and richest and softest effects of even satins and silks may be imi tated in this durable but plastic sub stance.

Where Dean Swift First Met Stella. Moor Park, Farnham, which has just changed hands, is to the lover of lit erature one of the most historic places in England.

It was there that Swift met Stella when he was secretary to Sir William Temple, and at Moor Park he also wrote "The Battle of the Books" and "The Tale of a Tub." The estate, which is not to be confused with the one of the same name near Rickmans worth, also lives in the pages of Jane Austen, where the provenance of some especially choice apricots is exalted on the strength of their being "genuine Moor Parks."

MEXICAN ELECTION WITHOUT DECISION

Catholic Party Claims Lead for Gamboa—Few Votes Cast.

FELIX DIAZ QUILTS ARMY POST

Resigns After He Refuses to Accept "Invitation" to Make Trip to Cap ital City—No Disorders at Polling.

City of Mexico, Oct. 27.—The Mex ican elections have been an absolute farce. Hardly any votes have been cast and in some precincts there was not a single vote cast. General Huerta will remain in the presidential chair "ad interim."

No official announcement was made, but it was estimated, judging from the results in the capital, where it was expected the vote would be up to the av erage, that less than 10,000 of the 80, 000 eligible voters in the republic went to the polls. It would be no sur prise if congress, the members of which also were voted for, declared the election void when the body is or ganized and revises the returns.

The leaders of the Catholic party claimed a long lead, although they were unable to estimate the number of votes polled for their candidates, Federico Gamboa and General Ras con. If this claim is correct it is gen erally thought that Gen. Felix Diaz and Senor Requena ran second. The Lib eral candidates, Manuel Calero and Flores Macon, had no printed ticket at the polling places.

President Huerta spent the day at his Popotla suburban home. A decree was issued by General Huerta increas ing the army from 85,000 men, its al leged present number, to 150,000. General Huerta proposed such an in crease some time ago, but the con gress which he dissolved limited him to 80,000.

Since the deputies and senators are not subject to the election provisions governing the presidential elections, it is said that the choice for congress is assured. It is assumed, on the showing so far known, the Catholic party will secure a majority in both chamber and senate.

No Disorder in Voting.

The elections promised by the provi sional president, General Huerta, were held without a semblance of disorder in any quarter of the city. A few patrols were on the streets, but neither police nor troops had any but their usual duties to perform.

Diaz Cuts Last Tie.

Vera Cruz, Oct. 27.—The last shred binding Gen. Felix Diaz and Gen. Victoriano Huerta was severed when General Diaz telegraphed to the de partment of war his resignation as brigadier general of the army.

The negotiations regarding the trip to Mexico City on the invitation of Huerta ended by his flat refusal to ac company General Vidaurrazaga, sec retary to General Blanco, war min ister, giving as his reason the illness of his wife. Colonel Vidaurrazaga con tinued his efforts to induce General Diaz to change his decision, but finally left for the capital on a special train. Diaz and his family remained here.

General Diaz expresses the belief that no doubt the war department will grant his application for retirement, although a few of his friends point to the possibility that the answer may come in the form of an order of ar rest.

General Diaz said he realized he had no chance for election to the presi dency. His plans for the future are not yet made, but he expects to estab lish a temporary residence in Vera Cruz.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Although of ficial Washington watched the strag gling returns from the Mexican elec tions with keen anxiety, the only thing which stood out prominently in the day's news from the distracted coun try was the prevailing quiet that marked the elections.

JAIL ABUSES FOUND TRUE

Body Who Prud Pontiac (Ill.) Prison Cite Brutal Treatment.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 27.—An orga nization which is the "natural outgrowth of years of corrupt practice and gross mismanagement" has prevailed for years at the state reformatory at Pontiac, according to the board of managers of the institution, who re cently conducted an investigation of its affairs. Their report was handed to Governor Dunne.

Some of the conditions found are as follows: Physical punishment of inmates by keepers, guards, teachers and other officers was the rule rather than the exception.

That Dr. James A. Marshall, reform atory physician, made a practice of beating newly arrived inmates with his fist and "squeezes," and that he was brutal almost to the point of ferocity.

HOUSE HE BUILT HER

By E. L. DITHRIDGE.

"Yes," said the elder man, "you may, but only after you have complied with a certain condition."

The other leaned forward eagerly, hoping the condition would be within his powers to perform. His eyes glowed; his lips parted his hands clasped, and his fingers twisted anxiously, during the pause that ensued. Then the condition came, short, forcible and abrupt:

"First build her a house!"

Well, it was a hard requirement at best, and almost an impossible one. Yet he made up his mind at once that he would comply with the condition.

James Burton was a young engineer trying to make his fortune in the mines of Mexico. He had no money with which to start independently, so he had engaged as an assistant in the employ of a large company operating near Mexico City. He had not been in the country six months, and during that period had grown to love the daughter of a wealthy ranch owner. The ranchero had practically no English education himself, but had provided a way for the education of his children in both English and Spanish. His eldest daughter, Aurora, had attended a boarding school in Philadelphia.

Aurora was as sensible as she was bright. None of the flirty, flirtatious character of the Spanish race seemed to belong to her.

Burton loved her, not merely because she was captivating, but because she combined those sterling qualities admired by every man of serious nature.

He knew Aurora loved him, and all he wanted was the parental sanction. Now he had obtained it, but with a difficult condition imposed.

How could he build her a house? He was drawing only $120 per month. Enough, you say? Remember that this is the debased currency of Mexico.

So how was James Burton to support himself on $120 a month and build a house besides? You don't know, and neither did he; but he determined to do it just the same.

By means of many inquiries he had satisfied himself that $250 Mexican was a safe estimate of the cost of a three-room adobe house built so as to be barely comfortable.

Burton figured that the wages on the foundation would cost him $20, that the adobe would cost him $40, and that he could get half the quantity delivered in March and the other half in April. Then he could get about $20 worth of work done each month until the house was completed.

As a site for her house he selected the brow of a little hill about a mile from the reduction plant and about half a mile from the line of the company's property. Then he started a man excavating, for he had decided to deviate from the Mexican custom and have a little cellar.

Every evening he would trot out on horseback and take a look at the progress being made. He was rather disappointed at the slow rate of advance, but couldn't blame the workman for the cause of the trouble was self-evident. Right in the middle of the hole stuck a point of rock formed in a perfect cone. The workman had tried to dig it out; but as he dug the rock seemed to grow.

As he stood there musing on how much extra the rock would cost him, he kicked at it absent-mindedly and vindictively.

The sun was just setting, and its rays struck squarely on the place where his foot had scraped off the earth from the stone.

"My! That's a mighty bright sort of stone!" thought Burton to himself. "Guess I'll knock off a bit and see what it looks like inside."

The house he built her was not finished till two years later; but it was located in the American section of the City of Mexico, instead of out in the wilderness.

It was built of cut stone instead of baked mud, and contained 30 rooms instead of three. Its lights were electric instead of tallow. Its windows were trimmed with onyx, and its mirrored halls with marble. Many an opal decked its dining room; for its hostess entertained with a lavish hand and was never called on to economize.

One of these functions I was permitted to attend; and I heard her father say:

"Burton, you've made a fine success!"

"I owe it all to you," he replied. "You made me attempt to build her a house; and 'twas then I struck the mine."

AS SHE SAILED INTO NEW YORK BAY ON LA PROVENCE

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the British militant suffragette leader, was happy when she sailed into New York bay on the French liner La Provence, for she did not for a moment believe she would be detained more than for a few moments by the immigration authorities at Ellis Island. But as she was locked up there her expression changed.

Mrs. Pankhurst has grown heavier in the face since she was last seen in the United States. And despite her hunger strikes, her face looks fuller and stronger.

PRIEST IS HERO OF BLAZE

Struggles Through Debris and Gives Absolution to Dying Men in Ruins of Goodyear Company's Building—Loss is $500,000.

Milwaukee, Oct. 27.—Seven firemen were killed, four persons are missing and twenty-four were injured as the result of a $500,000 fire which began in the four-story building of the Goodyear Rubber company, in the center of the business district.

The men were killed under a falling wall when an explosion wrecked the building and smashed glass in surrounding buildings within a radius of two blocks. A priest struggled through the debris and gave the buried men absolution.

Lieut. Charles Newton of the insurance patrol was entombed under a pile of bricks and timber for more than two hours, but was rescued. It was found he had only suffered minor injuries, though he was with the men on whom the wall fell. A timber had fallen in such a position that it protected him from the remainder of the debris.

Seven bodies and twenty-four injured men were taken from the ruins. Identified Dead.

TROOPS TO END RIOTS

Militia Arrives in Coal Fields of Colorado.

Governor Acts Following Battle Between Strikers and Guards in Which Two Men Are Killed.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 27.—As the result of a battle between strikers and mine guards, Governor Ammons ordered troops to the southern coal fields to disarm the strikers and guards alike to prevent a civil war.

The guards arrived in the district at midnight and martial law was declared throughout the district, while Adjutant General Chase, in charge of the troops, will assume charge of the district.

The immediate cause of calling out the troops was the serious situation in the district in the morning, with guards and deputy sheriffs surrounded by armed strikers, at Berwind, Tobacco and other camps following the killing of two strikers by the guards and the killing of a guard at Ludlow.

The policy of the governor is to disarm at once strikers, guards and deputy sheriffs. Both the strikers and the guards are armed with machine guns, and the situation became so tense that it was realized that any moment an overt act might result in a battle with tremendous loss of life, and it was to prevent this battle and loss of life that the governor decided on calling out the troops.

London to Have New Lord Mayor.

Though he does not assume office till November 9, the election of the lord mayor of London, England, the successor of the fabled Dick Whittington, and other historic magistrates, takes place this month. Already it is announced that the choice of the liverymen, the members of the city companies, who elect the lord mayor, has fallen upon Sir Thomas Vansittart Bowater, who is the head of a large firm of paper merchants. Sir Vansittart, as he is popularly called, has been a common councilman since 1899. He was high sheriff of London in 1905-6, when he assisted the lord mayor of the day, Sir Walter Vaughan-Morgan, to entertain the late King George of Greece at the Guildhall, and to welcome King George and Queen Mary, at that time prince and princess of Wales, on their return home from India. Sir Vansittart, during his year of office, made civic visits to Milan and Rome, when he was honored with an audience by the king of Italy.

What Fashion Decees
for the Separate Coat

All the newer models in separate coats are inclined to draw in about the feet. There is also a very marked effort to show the elongated effect in the cutaway front and long paneled back.

Coats button close up at the throat and are cut from 36 to 42 inches long—few are full length. The dressier models are somewhat shorter than those designed for more practical wear.

Collars are indeed of the utmost importance, the most desirable being a variation of the board Directoire that spreads out flat on the shoulders with loops by which to fasten it close and high a universally becoming style and one that is well adapted to wear in our winter climate.

Many of the practical utility coats show the regulation coat sleeve, set in at the arm hole, but the dressier models demand the use of the Mandarin sleeve.

Bischof's Coats show all the important style changes. In their graceful, sweeping lines and clever cut you will find the most becoming coat you have ever worn. Come in and try them on. You will be interested in all the important little features that makethese garments so distinctive and modish.

Beyond His Comprehension. "King Lear is a great character," remarked the friend. "Yes," answered the actor; "I suppose you remember my performance last season?" "No, I must confess I have never seen you in the part." "Indeed!" was the rejoinder in a tone of gentle surprise. "Then how on earth did you know it was a great character?"—Liverpool Mercury.

Set Your Burden Down.

Following is an extract from a little article in Farm and Fireside: "An aged, weary-looking woman, with a heavy basket upon her arm, entered the train at one of the way stations. Carrying her burden with some difficulty down the aisle, she found an empty seat of which she took possession. Instead of placing her burden upon the floor or upon the seat beside her, she continued to hold it, shifting its weight now and then from one knee to the other. A working man across the aisle watched her for some time in silence, but at last when he could stand it no longer he reached over and touched the woman upon the arm. 'Madam,' he said, 'if you will set your basket down the train will carry both it and you.' How much of human nature there is in this little incident! Some people never try to 'ease the burden' which circumstance has decreed shall be theirs. They insist on carrying it even when they might temporarily lay it down and ease their backs."

Alleged Critic Punished.

A lively scene was created at Aberystwyth, Cardigan, Wales, recently by students from the University College. Adverse criticism of the college Rugby team in a local newspaper brought outrageous punishment down on a student alleged to be the writer. At the close of the morning lectures he was seized by his fellow students and marched to the castle ruins overlooking the sea. There he was bound, and upon his head was poured the contents of a can of syrup, while bags of confetti were flung at him from all sides, until he looked like a human kaleidoscope. Then he was borne on a truck like a trussed fowl through the streets of the town and along the Marine Promenade and afterwards released.

For authoritative Style

THIS season the most authoritative styles come from London. Coats hug the form more about the waist. Sleeves are snug. Lapels are soft-rolling. Vests are high. Trousers are spare and straight.

All of these style tendencies you'll find faithfully expressed in our Kirschbaum Clothes. In no other clothes selling at like prices can you get garments that are all-wool, London-shrunk, hand-tailored and sewn with silk thread. Come see them.

Avoiding a Cold.

Avoiding a cold is to a certain extent a matter of constitution, of habit, of manner of living and of mental hygiene. Some persons instinctively know the moment a cold begins to come on, and by stamping their feet hard on the floor and mentally defying it break it up at once. Others sit down by a hot fire and drink very hot water and get into a perspiration and then go to bed. Others inhale very hot air before a hot wood fire for a few times. A cold is a sort of nervous disease, caused probably by nervous shock from cold air on the neck or the base of the head or abdomen or back or feet or legs. These are the parts most susceptible. By toughening the skin and its nerves they bear cold better and thus colds are avoided. The habitual cold sufferer rarely has a cold, but many do not think they can bathe regularly, and so the skin becomes more and more sensitive, until finally the very least change of air produces a bad effect.

Sacred Sights Uncovered.

Excavations at Nazareth in Palestine have uncovered the spot on which stood the carpenter's workshop of Joseph, husband of Mary, mother of Jesus. The Franciscan monks, on whose property the discovery was made, have bought all the adjoining buildings, and intend to erect a magnificent temple to mark the spot. It is also believed that the spot where Christ's transfiguration took place has been found. It is an imposing rough, hewn rock, resembling an ancient altar.

Earnestness Above All.

Some happy talent, and some fortunate opportunity, may form the two sides of the ladder on which some men mount, but the rounds of that ladder must be made of stuff to stand wear and tear; and there is no substitute for thorough-going, ardent and sincere earnestness. Never to put one hand to anything on which I could throw my whole self; and never to affect depreciation of my work, whatever it was, I find now to have been my golden rules.—David Copperfield.

No Use.

There is a certain little girl in Brooklyn who remains unconvinced of the efficacy of prayer, in one direction at least.

"It ain't any use," she lately confided to a member of her family. "For a long time I have wanted a baby brother. I pray, but he don't come."

"You should continue to pray," was the elder's advice. "There's no telling when your wish may be fulfilled." "I don't believe it's any use," persisted the youngster. "Here I have been praying for a brother for over a year, but he don't come. Now the little girl across the street began praying for a brother only week before last, and he came yesterday—she got hers right off!"

TREASURY GIVES INCOME TAX PLAN

Statement Covers All the Details of Law Recently Passed by Congress.

SHOWS LIST OF EXEMPTIONS

System of Collection at Source Explained for Those Who Are Liable—Penalty for Persons Making False Representation.

Washington, Oct. 27.—On next Saturday the treasury department will begin the collection of the income tax at their source. Treasury officials made public its regulations governing the collection.

They relate to the deduction of the income tax at the source of interest maturing on bonds and on notes and other similar obligations of corporations, joint stock companies, or associations and insurance companies.

The tax applies to every citizen, whether residing at home or abroad, and to every alien residing in the United States.

Divisions Made in Rulings.

The regulations cover the following heads:

When the tax shall be withheld by the debtor.

When the tax shall be withheld by the first collecting agency.

Payment of registered interest by debtors.

Designation of fiscal agencies.

Certificates claiming exemption.

Organizations whose interest coupons are not taxed at the source.

License required for collection of income from foreign countries.

By whom the tax is withheld.

Penalties for false statements.

Partnerships.

Tax to Be Deducted at Source.

Under the income tax law, enacted October 3, 1913, a tax of one per cent, designated in the law as the normal tax, shall be deducted at "the source," beginning November 1, 1913, from all income accruing and payable to—

(A). Every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad, and to—

(B). Every person residing in the United States, though not a citizen thereof, which may be derived from interest on bonds and mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations, including equipment trust agreements, and receivers' certificates of corporations, joint stock companies or associations, and insurance companies, although such interest does not amount to $3,000; excepting only the interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, or a state or any political subdivision thereof.

The term "debtor" as hereinbefore used shall be construed to cover all corporations, joint stock companies, or associations and insurance companies.

Tax Withheld by Debtor.

For the purpose of collecting this tax on all coupons and registered interest, originating, or payable, in the United States the source shall be the debtor (or its paying agent in the United States), which shall deduct the tax when same is to be withheld, and no other bank, trust company, banking firm, or individual taking coupons for collection, or otherwise, shall withhold the tax thereon; provided that all such coupons, or orders for registered interest, are accompanied by certificates of ownership signed by the owners of the bonds from which the coupons were detached.

These certificates shall be in the forms hereinafter prescribed and a separate certificate shall be made out by each owner of bonds for the coupons or interest orders for each separate issue of bonds or obligations of each debtor.

Withheld by Collecting Agency.

If, however, the coupons are not accompanied by certificates as prescribed heretofore, the first bank, trust company, banking firm, or individual or collecting agency receiving the coupons for collection, or otherwise, shall deduct and withhold the tax and shall attach to such coupons its own certificate giving the name and address of the owner of or the person presenting such coupons if the owner is not known, with a description of the coupons; also setting forth the fact that they are withholding the tax upon them; whereupon the debtor shall not again withhold the tax on said coupons, but in lieu thereof shall deliver to the government the certificate of such bank, trust company, etc., which is withholding such tax money.

Designating Fiscal Agents.

The debtor may appoint paying or fiscal agents to act for it in matters pertaining to the collection of this tax, upon filing with the collector of internal revenue for its district a proper notice of the appointment of such agent or agents.

If the owners of the bonds are individuals who are citizens or residents of the United States, the certificates shall accompany the coupons, or with respect to the interest on registered bonds shall be filed with payer of said interest, and such certificates shall describe the bonds and show the amount of coupons attached, or the amount of interest due such owners on registered bonds and the full name and address of the owners and shall also state whether they claim, or do not then claim, exemption from taxation at the source provided for by paragraph C of section Z of the federal income tax law ($3,000 and, under certain conditions, $4,000) as to the income represented by such coupons or interest.

Not Taxed at Source.

If the owners of the bonds are corporations, joint stock companies, associations or insurance companies organized in the United States, no matter how created or organized, or organizations, associations, fraternities, etc., which are either taxable or exempt from taxation as provided in paragraph G, subdivision A, of the act, the debtor is not required to withhold or deduct the tax upon income derived from interest on such bonds, provided coupons or orders for interest from such bonds shall be accompanied by a certificate of the owners thereof, certifying to such ownership, which certificates shall be filed with the debtor when such coupons or interest orders are presented for payment.

Disposition of Certificates.

The debtor, or paying agents, shall deliver all certificates with the list of names and addresses of those for whom the tax has been withheld, showing amounts as required by law, to the collector of internal revenue for their district on or before the 20th day of the month succeeding that in which said certificates were received by them.

The tax shall not be withheld on coupons, or registered interest, maturing and payable before March 1, 1913, although presented for payment at a later date.

All persons, firms or corporations undertaking for accommodation or profit (this includes handling either by way of purchase or collection) the collection of coupons, checks or bills of exchange for or in payment of interest upon bonds issued in foreign countries and upon foreign mortgages, or like obligations, and for any dividends upon stock or interest upon obligations or insurance companies engaged in business in foreign countries, are required by law to obtain a license from the commissioner of internal revenue and to give bond in such amount and under such conditions as the commissioner of internal revenue may prescribe.

The licensed person, firm, or corporation first receiving any such foreign items, for collection or otherwise, shall withhold therefrom the normal tax of one per cent, and will be held responsible therefor.

The provisions for collection of the tax on foreign obligations set forth in this section of the regulations includes the interest upon all foreign bonds, even though the coupons may be, at the option of the holder, payable in the United States as well as in some foreign country.

Failure to obtain license or to comply with regulations is punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. Such licenses shall continue in force until revoked.

Application for such licenses should be made to the collectors of internal revenue.

False Statement Penalty.

If any person, for the purpose of obtaining any allowance or reduction by virtue of a claim for exemption, either for himself or for any other, knowingly makes a false statement or false or fraudulent representation he is liable under the act to severe penalties.

Foreign-Owned Bonds.

This tax will not be deducted from the income which may be derived from interest on bonds, mortgages, equipment trusts, receiver's certificates, or other similar obligations of which the bona fide owners are citizens of foreign countries residing in foreign countries, provided, that when such interest coupons or in case of wholly registered bonds the orders for the payment of such interest shall be accompanied by duly certified certificates to cover the cases of foreign and non-resident owners of bonds and other securities.

Unless such proof of foreign securities is duly furnished the normal tax of one per cent, shall be deducted.

On or before February 1, 1914, certificates of ownership of any of the bonds from which were detached coupons, may be delivered to the debtor, and said debtor may thereupon return any sum withheld to which the owner of such bonds may be entitled under the law and regulations, upon the facts disclosed by such ownership certificates. Any temporary certificates relating to bonds for which certificates of ownership shall not have been delivered to the debtor shall on or before March 1, 1914, be delivered to the collector of internal revenue.

W. H. OSBORN,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.
Approved, October 25, 1913.

W. G. M'ADOO,
Secretary of the Treasury.

GUARDIAN MUST BE NAMED FOR MINOR HEIR SAYS FARRAND

set aside and the matter re-opened for further proceedings. The prayer of this petition was granted on July 25, 1913, and after due notice had been given to all parties in interest, another hearing was had on September 3rd.

As a result of the latter hearing the will was again refused probate, and George C. Dixon, having been appointed guardian ad litem of certain minor heirs at this hearing, prayed an appeal from the probate court's decision, and the matter has been brought to this court upon such appeal.

The guardian ad litem, George C. Dixon, represents in the neighborhood of twenty-two infants, who are interested to a greater or less degree in the probate of the will in question.

The petition for probate first filed in the court below gave the names of all parties interested, including the minor children aforesaid, but failed to convey to the probate court any information to the effect that they were such minors; nor was there any thing in the papers filed, nor in the proceedings before the probate court that might intimate to such court that there were in fact minor heirs who were interested in the probate of the will.

Service Secured.

It is urged here that because of the service of copies of the petition for probate of the will upon all those residing in this county, and the publication of notice to non-residents, that the county court obtained jurisdiction of the parties, and that the law confers jurisdiction of the subject matter; and that thereby the county court was vested with full power and authority to make any and all orders necessary concerning the probate, or refusal to probate, of said will, and that such orders would be binding upon all parties, including the minor children in question.

There is no question raised but what a copy of the petition was served upon all residents and that proper notice was published as to all non-residents who were interested parties.

Prior to 1897 no notice of the application for probate of a will was necessary or required. The parties in interest, with their witnesses, could come into court upon any day and without any notice whatever proceed at once to have the will admitted to probate.

The legislature a few years ago, enacted a law requiring notice to be given to all parties in interest, and our courts have repeatedly held that the failure to give notice to any one person in interest left the court without jurisdiction to enter any order probating a will.

The law abolishing the writ of coram nobis provides that all errors which by the common law could have been corrected by said writ, may be corrected by the court in which the error was committed, upon motion in writing made within five years after the rendition of final judgment in the case, upon reasonable notice being given. The Act expressly refers to infants. Therefore, if any error was committed by the county court in failing to have a guardian ad litem appointed for the minors in interest, such court would have the right and power at any subsequent date or term of court (within five years) to correct that error. I have no doubt but what the order refusing probate was an order "in the proceedings of a court of record."

Consequently, in my judgment, the only question to be determined is: Should the probate court have appointed a guardian ad litem for the minors? Year after year the past 30 thirty years, our courts have been holding that probate courts in this state have equity jurisdiction, and but a few years ago the legislature, by express enactment, conferred upon such courts full power and authority to hear, pass upon and determine the title to real estate upon application to sell the same for the purpose of paying estate debts.

Have Chancery Powers.

The almost universal and uniform trend of the opinions of our courts, and of statutory enactments, of late years, has been to confer upon probate courts full chancery powers in the settlement of estates, although at no time have they intimated that such courts have greater power than the circuit or chancery courts of the state.

In the last named courts, a judgment or finding affecting the interests of minors, without first appointing a guardian ad litem, would be absolutely null and void.

Under the terms of the will in question the life use of certain real estate was given to certain of the testator's children, and upon their death the fee passed immediately to the grand children, or, stating it in other words, had this will been admitted to probate without any question as to the legal right of probate, and one or more of the children of the deceased had on the following day died, the grand children of the testator,—some of those whose rights are now being passed upon by the court,—would at once have become the absolute owners of such portions of the estate as were by the terms of the will devised to their parents.

These minor grand children were certainly interested in any and all orders entered concerning the probate, or refusal to probate, of the will in question. While they were served with a copy of the petition, they nevertheless had a right to be heard; they had a right to interpose their objections, to enter their protests, to any action taken by the court, and this they could not do save through a legally appointed guardian ad litem.

The supreme courts of Vermont and Wisconsin have held that the probate court was without jurisdiction to enter an order concerning the probate of a will unless a guardian ad litem had been appointed for the infants having an interest. In neither state is there a statute making necessary the appointment of such guardian.

Must Be Heard.

Why the necessity of making these infants parties if they are to be deprived of an opportunity to be heard? The statute in this state is silent as to the appointment of a guardian ad litem in proceedings to probate a will, but the right and duty of courts to at all times protect the interests of such infants is inherent. Blackstone, in Book 3, star paging 427, says: "The power to appoint a guardian ad litem to manage the defense of an infant is incident to the jurisdiction of every court of justice."

I believe that the probate court not only had the legal power to set aside the first order refusing probate, but that it was the duty of the court to do so, and to grant a rehearing.

The motion to dismiss the appeal will therefore be overruled and an order entered admitting the will to probate.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IS YOUR LAXATIVE

Best liver and bowel cleanser and stomach regulator known

Get a 10-cent box.

Put aside all other laxatives—The Salts, Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food, and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the contaminated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have headache, biliousness, coated tongue, indigestion, sour stomach or constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

Women in War.

What a splendid courage and unflinching zeal in their country's cause the hoer women showed in the South African war has never been so fully realized as it will be now by all who read the remarkable record just published under the title of "Petticoat Commands." This is practically the diary done in narrative form of a girl who, with her widowed mother, outwitted the English officers and men and helped their countrymen. They were clever, cultivated and kindly women, simply aglow with patriotism; and to read what they did and how they did it makes one realize afresh what wonderful creatures women are. Let scientists say what they will, women are in no way inferior to men, and in many ways vastly superior. In resource certainly, in tact often, in strength of purpose at least their equals.

ANCIENT AND MODERN WAR

Idle to Make Comparison as to the Courage Required by the Soldiers of the Period.

Much is written of the terrors of modern war. Little is written of the terrors of the wars of old. Yet it is doubtful if war today makes greater demands on human courage than war in the time of Grant, of Washington, of Turenne, of Caesar, of Alexander.

Consider a stand-up infantry fight in the days of the revolution. After the preliminary cannonade and long-distance musketry practice, the two regiments marched toward each other in close ranks. At a given distance, frequently at thirty yards, there was a halt, a smashing volley, and then a bayonet charge through the smoke.

Bullets those days were large and of soft lead, and the man who was hit went down. Over him tramped his comrades or the enemy, shooting and stabbing.

That was the type of infantry battle for 150 years. To minimize the courage needed to make a good soldier under such circumstances is to fly in the face of common sense.

Modern war requires a different type of courage from that needed of old. The old touch of elbows is lacking. The old feeling of companionship is gone. The modern soldier must be more alert, better taught, keener witted than the olden soldier of equal value. But it does not follow that the modern soldier is the braver man.

The man who fought at the "blood-angles" of Chickamauga and Spottsylvania, at Bunker Hill and Oriskany, at Rivoli, Zorndorf and Milplaque, had no need to learn heroism in any modern school. It was there already.

Baboon on the Rampage.

A baboon which escaped from a show at Dudley, Worcester, England, attacked three people in the main street of the town on a recent night, and in the subsequent chase scaled walls and reached the roofs of houses, where it had to be shot. The animal had been conveyed on the day of the escape from the barracks at Lichfield, the soldiers there parting with their regimental pet, which had traveled with them from Gibraltar. At the show it was chained to the wall, but during the evening wrenched itself free, and knocking an attendant down, rushed into the street, which was filled with people. A boy was severely bitten on the leg, and had to be taken to the hospital, and a woman and a girl received lesser injuries. The animal, after being followed by an excited crowd, reached the roof of a house, and although it eagerly devoured the fruit that was thrown, it showed fight when its capture was attempted.

KEEP HUNTERS FROM BIRDS

One Good Thing, and About All, That Can Be Said for the Pestilent Mosquito.

In the north of Canada the mosquito reigns supreme. The swarms that rise from streams, lakes and marshes, as each comes to the surface and emerges, dry, from the skin he wore when a wiggler in the water, cannot be checked or resisted. Though weakly blown aside by the wind or driven off by smoke, they triumph by the force of numbers.

There is compensation for their virulent annoyance, and even for their transmission of the germs of malaria, compensations more important than the feeding of trout and bass fry. They protect our feathered game during the nesting season and insure immunity to the flocks of migrants that rear their broods in the northern woods. The egg collector, the skin collector and all the inquisitive, curious and destructive who would otherwise invade the woods and marshes during the nesting season, are warned off by that ominous and persistent hum. It is more effective than all the game-preserving and bird-protecting statutes. It insures safety during that helpless time when the mother bird can only flutter along the ground in paralyzed terror, drawing the invader away from her treasured but helpless offspring. While the mosquito reigns supreme the bird life that ranges the continent will nest unmolested in its varied northern retreats.

SEEK FOR THE "SUNNY SIDE"

To Look Always for the Best Is One of the Main Secrets of Life's Happiness.

One who boards a train on a hot day is usually careful to choose a seat on the shady side. If we took as much care to look on the sunny side as we do to sit on the shady side this would be a far more contented and peaceful world.

The best of good habits to cultivate is that of seeing things as a radiant and glorious flood of daylight shows them, not as shapes dimly described in the gloom of a pestilential cavern. Uplift a stone in the field—and on the under side, the side away from the sun, you will find a damp and mouldy foulness, with all manner of crawling, many-legged creatures that run away from the light because they do not love it. How different it is from the beauty of the flowers and the verdure of the greenward living in the open, and looking toward the sky! In life it is like that. We have not ascertained the secret of happiness until we have learned to look, to work, and to live, forever on the sunny side.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A FEW COMPANY DISHES.

Arrange a few white grapes (after carefully making a slit in the side of each and removing the seeds) on a bed of blanched lettuce, put cream cheese through a ricer and sprinkle over them. Serve with French dressing well chilled.

Bake an angel food in a round tin and when cold, carefully cut out the center and fill with vanilla ice cream. Serve with a chocolate sauce.

Cherry ice cream is both pretty and tastes good. Use a cup of rich cherry juice and a pint of cream, flavor with almond and sweeten, if necessary. Freeze and garnish each sherbet cup of the cream with a spoonful of chopped cherries.

A sweet of which children are very fond is prepared by making an ordinary biscuit dough rolled out and spread with butter, then sprinkled with maple sugar grated and a few chopped nuts. Roll up and cut in rounds, bake in a hot oven. For dessert, one might use them hot with a maple syrup sauce.

Almond Cake.—Cream a third of a cup of butter, add a cup of sugar, a cup of flour, a teaspoon of baking powder, a bit of salt and a fourth of a cup of milk, the yolks of six eggs, well beaten, and the grated rind of one lemon. Put the mixture into a good sized pan and cover the dough with the whites well beaten and mixed with a cup of sugar and a cup of unblanched almonds chopped. Bake in a slow oven.

Nut Loaf.—To a cupful of nut meats, add two cups of bread crumbs, half a cup of hot water, half a cup of melted butter, one egg, well beaten, a teaspoonful of onion juice and a teaspoonful of tomato catsup, one teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper, more salt may be needed, mix well and put into a buttered mold, and bake for an hour, covering the first half hour. During the cooking, baste with melted butter three times. Turn out on a hot dish, sprinkle with chopped nuts and serve with a brown sauce.

WASTING TIME OVER DETAILS

Writer Points Out Mistake Made by Many Men Who Occupy Executive Positions.

Many a man in a high executive position impairs his efficiency by trying to do work that a low priced subordinate could accomplish just as well. "Some managers are proud of calling themselves masters of details when really the details have nearly mastered them," says a writer in System.

"I remember the treasurer of a bank note company, who was forever undertaking to show his clerks how much better he could do their work than they could. One day the president of the concern took him by the shoulders, backed him into his private office, rolled an armchair to the window, and said solemnly: 'Your business here in office hours is to sit in that chair and think. That is what you are paid for—so do it!'

"He had the right experience of detail, but instead of using it to propel his train of thought he kept it running back and forth over its own little, limited track, and his activity didn't get him anywhere."

HELPLESS WITHOUT THE DOG

Seemingly Owner of Cows Had Not Thought That He Himself Might Go After Them.

An Atlanta man tells of an amusing experience he had in a mountainous region in a southwestern state, where the inhabitants are notoriously shiftless. Arriving at a dilapidated shanty at the noon hour, he inquired as to the prospect for getting dinner.

The head of the family, who had been "resting" on a fallen tree in front of his dwelling, made reply to the effect that he "guessed ma'd hev suthin' onto the table putty soon."

With this encouragement the traveler dismounted. To his chagrin, however, he soon discovered that the food set before him was such that he could not possibly "make a meal." He made such excuses as he could for his lack of appetite, and finally betthought himself of a kind of nourishment which he might venture to take and which was sure to be found in any locality. He asked for some milk.

"Don't have milk no more," said the head of the place. "The dawg's dead."

"The dog!" cried the stranger. "What on earth has the dog to do with it?"

"Well," explained his host meditatively, "them cows don't seem to know 'nough to come up an' be milked their selves. The dog, he used to go for 'em an' fetch 'em up."—Lippincott's.

TO OULTRIVATHENS

SENATOR JONES WOULD HELENIZE THE CAPITAL.

Statesman's Ideas, If His Measure Is Passed, Would Be Applied to Property Between the Union Station and the Capitol Building.

The national capital ultimately will outrival the glory and grandeur of ancient Athens if Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington receives the support of congress in the enactment of legislation.

Senator Jones is an admirer of art and a lover of the splendor that ancient Rome and the Hellenic city.

Greece once knew, and he believes that Washington should be patterned after those unparalleled cities of the days long ago. He does not hope to revive in the nation's capital all of the temples and altars and statues of Athens and Rome, but he does expect at least to introduce into Washington some of the fine-sounding names, so pregnant with meaning and associations, that the ancients applied to their sacred buildings and grounds.

The senator's ideas are to be applied to the property now being acquired by the United States lying between the Union station and the capitol building. When all of the property has been condemned, the buildings will be razed, thus leaving an open plaza. It is this stretch of land that Senator Jones proposes to touch with a magic hand and convert into veritable Athens.

It is proposed to term the territory north of C street and extending to the capitol "The Acropolis." It is a most euphonious name, in the opinion of the senator, and it carries with it a dignity and a wealth of fond association that proves very impressive to the gentleman from Washington. He thinks that it is much finer to say to a friend, "I am on my way to the Acropolis," than to remark, "I'm going up to the capitol." In the first place, "Acropolis" comes from two Greek words meaning the upper town, or chief place of a city. The most famous Acropolis of all times was that at Athens, the ruins of which now are gazed upon with awe by the traveler abroad. Rome also had an Acropolis surrounding her capitol, and the Antonia at Jerusalem was nothing more or less than an Acropolis.

That is only half of the project. His second proposal is to designate as "The Parthenon" that portion of the land between Union station and the capitol lying south of C street and west of Delaware avenue northeast. The Athenian Parthenon was dedicated to the virgin goddess Athene, and Senator Jones thinks that it is only proper and fitting that the local one should be dedicated to woman and her achievements. He has no definite plans arranged so far, but in general terms, he proposes that memorials be erected within this territory. The nature of the memorials and their design will be left to the commission of fine arts for consideration and final decision.

The senator has not stated whether, in imitation of the Athenians, he will send to the quarries of Mount Pentellicus for white marble for use in the construction of the materials, but he is determined that these tributes to noble womanhood should be of the most ornate and artistic character. The senator says that as even the Parthenon of Athens was a storehouse for sacred treasure, so will the local Parthenon be the home of this nation's proudest possession—noble Womanhood.

The Washington Parthenon will not contain reliefs of frolicking youths and maidens, dignified priests and magistrates, joyful flute players and singers, fiery, prancing steeds, and oxen ready for sacrifice; instead, it is possible that there will be works of art depicting woman's victory over man, the story of her struggle for the ballot, and the tale of her fight for uplifting legislation.

The details of the project will be left to the fine arts commission. Senator Jones has introduced in congress a bill providing for the establishment of the Acropolis and the Parthenon, and he is using every effort to bring about the enactment of the measure.

IS OF DISTINCTIVE TYPE

Pillars in Basement of Capitol Stand Forth as Finest Example of American Architecture.

"One of the most striking examples of pure American architecture has been recently uncovered by the superintendent of the capitol," said a leading architect the other day.

"After the destruction of the capitol by the British in 1814 the only distinctive features left were the decorations on the stairway of the crypt and the six columns, or pillars, in the basement adjacent to the law library of the United States Supreme court. For many years these columns have been painted over until they were buried under many coats of white paint. Within the last ten days this paint has been removed, and the columns now stand forth in all their glory as the finest example of distinctively American architecture extant. The columns proper represent huge stalks of maize or Indian corn, and the capitals show the full ear. The idea of the architect in constructing the columns in the form of maize stalks doubtless came from the fact that Indian corn was one of the plants indigenous to America. The execution of the detail is beautiful, and the architecture is unique, inasmuch as it is entirely outside the accepted five orders of classical architecture.

"After the destruction of the capitol and during the reconstruction period, the architect of the capitol at that time, Latrobe, wrote to Thomas Jefferson, who, though retired, still took a deep interest in the rebuilding of the capitol. He pleaded that above all things these columns should be preserved, and it was largely through Mr. Jefferson's intervention that they were not destroyed."

IGNORED THE DOORKEEPERS

Young Woman Earned in Her Endeavor to Help Aspirant for Naval Academy.

Ignoring obstructions to navigation in the shape of doorkeepers and secretaries, Miss Norma Lee Johnson steered a straight course into the navy department and fired a broadside into several startled officials on behalf of Frank Lively, an aspirant for the naval academy, who had been rejected because he was five pounds too light. Miss Johnson is private secretary to Representative Avias of West Virginia, who appointed Lively to the academy.

"Five pounds, indeed," exclaimed Miss Johnson. "That's a mighty lot of avoirdupois missing in an admiral! I'll see about this!"

When she ended her cruise of the department the department fleet had capitulated. Lively's right for another examination had been won.

WHAT TO DO WITH THIS BOY

Case of Juvenile Criminality in France That May Well Puzzle the Social Reformer.

Here is a little life story that more vividly illuminates the task of the social reformer than any number of treatises. A couple of nights ago a boy of less than fifteen was discovered alongside the Seine by a couple of policemen. At first he refused to utter a word, but eventually he narrated his Odyssey. Eighteen months ago, when he was barely thirteen, he surreptitiously left his parents' house in Paris, taking with him a sum of 500 francs. With this money in his possession he went to Brussels, where he was shortly after arrested. The police conducted him home, but he escaped again. Taken back a second time, he was apprenticed to a farmer, but promptly departed on fresh adventures. Since then he has existed by means of begging and thieving. Two months ago he stole a couple of bicycles, and, mounting one and propelling the other, made off for Rouen, where he sold one of the machines, riding to Paris on the other. This he sold in Paris, and lived on the proceeds for a time, until, shelterless and without resources, he was found by the police. What can the sociologist, the penologist, or the philanthropist do with so youthful and precocious a criminal? The problem is a serious one in France, where juvenile crime is alarmingly on the increase.—Paris Correspondence London Globe.

LIKE "ANGEL AT THE GATE"

Swinburne in Gorgeous Array, Appeared to Simple Villagers as Flaming Apparition.

An amusing story of Swinburne is told by Edmund Gosse. At the age of twenty-three Swinburne was sent to study history under Bishop Stubbs, who was then in charge of a country parish in Essex. He arrived there on a Saturday and was excused attendance at Sunday morning church on the ground that he must be tired with his journey.

He had breakfast in bed, but finding it a glorious morning he arrayed himself in scarlet slippers and a light crimson dressing gown, sauntered into the garden and leaned pensively over the gate, with his red hair flaming brilliantly in the sunlight.

The church bells were ringing and the parishioners had all to pass the parsonage gate to get to church. But none of them dared to pass the flaming apparition, and all came to a halt. The church bells stopped, but at the instance of the vicar, who could not believe that all the parishioners had deserted him, were rung again.

At last the boldest man in the village booted past the gate and the rest stamped after him, Swinburne gazing at them in quiet wonder at that strange method of going to church.—Pall Mall Gazette.

SLAVERY OF COLONIAL DAYS

More Than Half a Million Whites Were Held in Bondage During That Period.

Could we draw the curtain which conceals the life of prehistoric people, we should see that the servant problem is as old as the human race. Indeed, if it were possible for extremes to meet, cave-dwellers and denizens of twentieth century skyscrapers would doubtless converse sympathetically on this never-ending problem. Its existence is due to the universal desire of man to use the strength of others for his own profit and pleasure—an unchangeable trait of human nature.

During the colonial period of our history, service was performed in the main by two classes—the negro slave and the indentured white servant, writes Prof. Marcus W. Jernegan in Harper's Magazine. The white servant, a semi-slave, was more important in the seventh century than even the negro slave, in respect to both numbers and economic significance. Perhaps the most pressing of the early needs of the colonists was for a certain and adequate supply of labor. It was the white servants who supplied this demand and made possible a rapid economic development, particularly of the middle and southern colonies. In 1633 there were 12,000 of these semi-slaves in Virginia, composing about one-sixth of the population, while nearly two-thirds of the immigrants to Pennsylvania during the eighteenth century were white servants. Every other colony made greater or less use of them, and it is likely that more than half a million persons were of this class during the colonial period.

To Convert Gypsies.

In a never-ending, restless tide, a million gypsies surge to and fro across Europe. From east to west they migrate at the beginning of summer, and west to east in the fall. Nowhere are they wanted, everywhere are they eyed with suspicion, but still every year they wander, and the authorities of the countries they cross dread their coming and are relieved when they go. There is always trouble at the frontiers. Here the wanderers are stopped, questioned and often imprisoned as vagrants. But there is nothing to do but finally let them go, and they invariably return the next year. An effort to aid and protect these gypsies is being made by a Swiss clergyman, Rev. H. Ecuier. He has organized a society one of the purposes of which is to instruct the gypsies in the Christian religion, for these nomads are all pagans.

Good Advice.
Lord Cheylesmore is telling an amusing story just now.

He went down to one of the big schools to distribute prizes on breaking-up day, and he says that before the ceremony one of the schoolboys gave him some good advice.

"If you're going to make a speech," said the youngster, "don't be too long. Remember that every minute you spend in talking you are taking something off my holiday!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Again the "Sirions."
King James I. is said to have been so well pleased with a lion of beef as to knight it and make it Sir Lion, or sir lion. However, a story of the same kind was also told of Henry VIII., and is to be found in Fuller's "Church History." Dining with the abbot of Reading, Henry, according to this authority, ate so heartily of a lion of beef that the abbot said he would give 1,000 marks for such a stomach. "Done!" said the king, and kept the abbot a prisoner in the tower until he grew ravenously hungry, and won his 1,000 marks and knighted the beef. But Webster characterizes this etymology as "erroneous," saying that the true spelling should be "surlion"—the "sur" being equal to "super."

OF LOCAL INTEREST

SOME PEOPLE WE KNOW, AND WE WILL PROFIT BY HEARING ABOUT THEM

This is purely a local event. It took place in Dixon. Not in some faraway place. You are asked to investigate it. Asked to believe a citizen's word. To confirm a citizen's statement. Any article that is endorsed at Home is more worthy of confidence. Than one you know nothing about. Endorsed by unknown people. Julius Gottlieb, merchant, 418 W. First St., Dixon, Ill., says: "My back had been causing me trouble. Often it was so lame and sore that it was hard to bend over. The kidney action was irregular and I knew that my kidneys were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros. Co's Drug store. They did such good work that I recommended them. I am glad to do so again." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name —Doan's— and take no other.

Sponges Left in Abdomen.
A suit like that brought a few weeks ago by a woman against a physician for leaving a towel in her abdomen following an operation has been brought by a Philadelphia man against two surgeons of the German Hospital staff, in that city, for $10,000 damages for alleged neglect in leaving in his abdomen two sponges following an operation at the hospital. The man alleges that the defendants performed the operation. He went to the hospital on January 14, 1911, and was discharged as cured on March 4. He suffered much pain after that, and went to another surgeon who performed a second operation on the plaintiff, and found in the wound two sponges and other medical material.

"Love Me, Love My Dog."

The women who believe in these sentiments will be made happy by one of the new luxurious valises in which to place the pampered pet while traveling. The valises are lined with white goat fur and are real nests of comfort. A series of holes in the side admit plenty of fresh air, while at the other side of the valise is a species of grill or wire lattice work which enables the dog to see all that is passing. Usually the valise is of leather, with its owner's name and address on an engraved brass label, and there are leather handles to enable it to be carried easily in the hand.

Did His Duty Nobly.

When the meningitis epidemic broke out in Texas it was necessary that the serum to combat the disease be administered by one familiar with its use. Dr. Sophian—the physician chosen—was sent to the field from New York. A few days later he was in the midst of the epidemic, working twenty or more hours a day, bending all his energies to the humanitarian work he was sent to perform. "When medical men work like this and fall a prey to disease, exposure or strain we honor them as martyrs," says the Journal of the American Medical association.

Passed Headache Along.

Bill, with the misery of a splitting headache showing in his eyes, was creeping along the Bowery when he met Jack. "Hello, Bill, what makes you look so sour?" was Jack's greeting. Bill explained. "Headache!" said Jack. "What the deuce are you doing with a headache? No business having it. I never had such a thing in my life." "Well, you've got one now," snarled Bill as he dealt his job's comforter a staggering crack with his stick.

KISS COSTS MAN FREEDOM

Insurance Agent Sent to Jail for Six Months.
Washington, Oct. 27.—Six months in jail for kissing another man's wife was what Edward Broadax got in police court here. He is an agent for a benefit insurance company and went to the home of Mrs. Grace Edwards to adjust a sick benefit claim. While there he kissed Mrs. Edwards against her will. He was convicted by a jury of assault, and the court imposed the lightest penalty under the law, which is six months in the workhouse. The court denied him the alternative of paying a fine.

Oysters are now caught by steamers, power boats and fast sailing vessels, delivered promptly at the shipping houses.
They are thus not subject to the delays formerly experienced.
They are kept cold by artificial refrigeration and by pure artificial ice. Oysters, either in shell or opened, are now shipped from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific, arriving there in as perfect condition as when taken from the water. There is no place in the United States or British America where the railroads penetrate in which oysters cannot be received in perfect condition.

A quart of bulk Oysters weighs two pounds at 40c per quart equals 20c per pound and no waste.
They are not a luxury. They are a cheap meat.
